

STEPone intern (m/f)

Integration-related business internship for refugees

Your opportunity:

- As a participant in our internship for refugees, you get the opportunity to start in a business department, with the prospect that you may be taken on as a permanent employee
- What awaits you is an interesting and exciting six-week internship. Based on agreement, the weekly working time amounts to around 24 hours
- You get the opportunity to take part in a six-week German-language intensive course within your internship
- Following successful completion of the internship, you have the chance either to make a direct entry into working life in one of the business units or to do an apprenticeship. As an integral part of a successful apprenticeship you will attend a vocational training centre

Your profile:

- You have attended school for several years in your country of origin and ideally you have professional experience in a business department
- You speak German at B2 level
- Your strengths include the ability to work in a team, a willingness to learn and reliability
- You contribute with the MS Office-applications and interest in them
